Teaching- New Course Development

Art 124
Foundation 3D

I developed and taught an introduction to fundamental issue of materials, making, and meaning for design and art, part of a sequence of foundation studios.

Art 321, Arch 403, Arch 506
Furniture Design

I have taught and develop an introduction to furniture design, with theory lectures and labs, and hands-on fabrication of primarily wood furniture. A series of tables, stools and benches are used explore issues of structure, material properties, tools and techniques, current cultural context, batch production, and furniture as nomadic architecture.

Art 334
Site and Context Theory for Public Art

As part of the Tools for Transformation funded Public art Program I developed and taught a lecture class in researching and representing the physical, social and temporal context of a site. A multi-discipline approach was emphasized.

Arch 432, Arch 532
Construction Materials and Assemblies

This is a required, large-format lecture class that I continue to develop also titled, "The Meaning of Construction and the Construction of Meaning". Architectural assemblies and construction systems, with particular emphasis is on the building envelope as both constraints and compositional opportunities. Projects include the digital representation and physical production of a program-enhanced concrete block. Tectonic precedent study is developed through sectional axonometric drawings. Final project is a sectional axonometric drawing investigating the tectonic development student's current 500 level studio project coordinating with studio, structures and urban theory class.

Arch 501, Arch 403
Storefront Studios

I continue to refine an outreach, community based studio in architecture, urban design and sustaining community. Particular emphasis has been on small town main streets. The Storefront Studio has worked in University District, White Center, Auburn, Southpark, Renton, Kent, Des Moines, Carnation, Puyallup, Roslyn, Morton, Goldendale, Sekiu, and International District.
See www.storefrontstudio.org for complete documentation.

Arch 503
Lighting Fixture Studio

I developed and taught a lighting fixture design studio, based on a studio taught by Professor Emeritus Marietta Millet. I also taught Lighting fixture studios also taught in Industrial design.

Arch 498
Exhibition Design

In different formats I teach an exhibition design seminar, starting with the Henry Art Gallery Maya Lyn exhibition. This began with the history and theories of public art and exhibition/ representation- produced lighting and digital media based installation. Also taught as Independent study seminar to produce lighting installation festival in Roslyn WA –“Northern Lights”. With work-study students the “Material Evidence” exhibition produced as teaching tool tie-in to 532 and BE Materials Library.

Arch 570
Design Development

I developed and teach a required large-format lecture class in design development based on a revised version of Professor David Miller’s outline. The class coordinates with tectonic studios through preliminary tectonic sectional axonometric drawing and technical detail sections. The class continues to investigate replacements to the tectonic model building that David Miller.

Arch 504 Autumn Quarter, 2013
Gehl Studio/ U District

Co-teaching with Nancy Rottle from Landscape Architecture, I helped revise an interdisciplinary studio, a U District based version of the Gehl Studio, fundamentally an Ecological Urbanism, with an emphasis on the space between buildings, and the calibration of the human dimension. The studio addressed three scales, the district, the site, and the human, including detail and material.

Arch 301 Winter Quarter, 2013
Undergrad Architecture Studio

I helped develop and co-taught an introduction to fundamental issues of architecture studio, with Kathryn Merlino.

Arch 501 Winter Quarter, 2016, 2017
Precast Tectonic Architecture Studio

I helped develop and co-taught a tectonic studio on Precast Concrete sponsored by the PCI institute, with Tyler Sprague.

Arch 570 Winter Quarter 2019, 2020, 2021, 2022
Design Development

As part of the curriculum changes and responses to accreditation reviews. We are developing and reiterating a new version of Arch 570. Closely paired with studio, and focused on the envelope, new assignments lectures and studio participation helped integrate course content with studio design development and technical documentation. This class has been helpful in accreditation reviews, adding to studio content in the areas of building enclosure and technical integration. It passed the recent NAAB Accreditation review without the need for follow up questions from the Committee.

Indigenous Content - Studio Arch 506, Seminar Arch 598, Lecture Series

I am assisting in bring in local Indigenous content and advisors in two studios so far and am developing and launching a new studio with Daniel Glenn and Kimberley Deriana in Autumn Quarter 2019. Indigenous Voice Lecture series for the Department and College, working with Bobbie Koch.

Arch231, Spring 2023

Design Lab – ‘Making and Materials’

I have developed the format, syllabus, schedule and assignments for a new Undergrad class for 150 students. Run in sections of 30, a dedicated studio with hotdesking is run as a hands-on lab, exploring basic principles of design.

“At the College of Built Environments, we study the physical constructions of our environment. The Architecture Department studies, in particular, at the scale of buildings. All scales nest in built environments from city to building to furniture. Each scale impacts the next. We can study at the smallest scale and learn lessons for the largest. In a foundation class, we can begin with the hand and body.”

“There are considered to be four different modes of learning, 1. visual, 2. auditory, 3. reading and writing, and 4. kinesthetic or hands-on. Arch 231 will use physical making as a learning tool. By constructing with actual materials will use our hands and simple tools to translate our ideas into reality. We will physically construct our mental constructs.”
